Gartner positioned Genpact in the Leaders quadrant based on the evaluation criteria of ability to execute and completeness of vision. As described in the report, "Against this backdrop of a highly competitive market, providers are being influenced to try to differentiate their offerings by using process enhancement technologies and services (PETS), offering benchmarking services, process methodologies and new delivery locations, and adding consulting skills to the BPO offering."

"We are honored to be positioned in Gartner's Magic Quadrant, as we believe it validates Genpact's continuous investment in our Smart Enterprise Processes (SEP(SM)) framework for business process effectiveness, operational delivery capabilities and skilled talent which has enabled us to create and deliver the right solution of smarter processes, smarter analytics and smarter technologies for our clients," said Shantanu Ghosh, senior vice president, Practices, Solutions and Transitions, Genpact. "We have also further strengthened our F&A offerings with industry domain expertise to help our clients drive more significant business outcomes from their core F&A processes."

With one of the industry's largest teams of employees dedicated to its F&A practice, Genpact has been providing extensive F&A business process management services since 1997 and currently delivers these specific services from 64 centers in 17 countries. In 2011, Genpact signed 17 new client engagements encompassing F&A processes, and in the past 14 months has made several acquisitions, including Akritiv and Accounting Plaza, to add high-value capabilities to its F&A services offerings. It provides F&A expertise across many key industry vertical markets such as manufacturing, life sciences, consumer product goods (CPG), retail, insurance and financial services.
