Conigliaro spent 15 years in leadership roles at Goldman Sachs before retiring as a partner in 2011, including co-director of the firm's Americas Equity Research unit and Technology Equity Research business unit leader. While at Goldman Sachs, she also served on the Compensation Policy Committee and the Americas Diversity Committee. From 1979 to 1996, Conigliaro was an equity analyst at Prudential Securities, where she specialized in the technology industry. She began her career as an intelligence analyst at the National Security Agency. Conigliaro currently serves on the public company Boards of Directors of Dell Inc., and Infoblox Inc. as well as the private company Arista Networks and the non-profit organization Bottomless Closet, in addition to being a member of the Museum Advisory Council at the American Museum of Natural History. She received a master's in business administration in finance with honors from Fairleigh Dickinson University and a bachelor's degree, summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa, from Boston University.

"We are honored to have Laura join the Genpact Board, as she will bring significant executive leadership and Board-level experience in global corporations as well as a deep understanding of the financial services and technology industries," said Robert Scott, Chairman of the Board, Genpact. "The Board looks forward to her valuable contributions and insights as Genpact continues on its growth path."

"As we continue to partner with global corporations across a range of industries to take them on a journey to best in class, having someone of Laura's caliber and experience on our Board will be a huge asset. Our market opportunity continues to be large and I welcome Laura's insights on how to best strategically align ourselves to add further value to our clients," said NV 'Tiger' Tyagarajan, president and CEO, Genpact.
